Chair’s Report

Chair Manning thanked Chancellor Collins for hosting the Board at the Medical School. He noted that at the Board’s last meeting, the trustees were given the opportunity to learn about the success of the academic and research enterprises of the Medical School and that the Board members are excited to be on campus to see the remnants of the successes Chancellor Collins mentioned in his presentation of the campuses strategic plan.

Chair Manning introduced and welcomed the new student Trustees: Derek Dunlea, UMass Amherst; Gray Milkowski, UMass Boston; Samantha Reid, UMass Dartmouth, and Camilla Yu, UMass Medical School. Malinda Reed from UMass Lowell was reelected. Chair Manning congratulated them on being selected by their peers to represent their interests on the Board of Trustees.
Chair Manning Welcomed Interim Chancellor Barry Mills and Chancellor Robert Johnson to the University. Prior to his appointment as Interim Chancellor, Barry Mills served as the Deputy Chancellor and Chief Operating Officer for the Boston campus. Chancellor Johnson addressed the Board in early March when he was appointed to serve in the leadership role at UMass Dartmouth. He brings a wealth of experience and knowledge. Chair Manning stated that he is excited to have both Chancellors lead the two campuses.

Chair Manning provided an overview of the day’s agenda. He also stated that the Board would discuss the FY18 Operating Budget and Senior Vice President Calise would report on the University’s revenue assumptions and expenses and outline the FY18 budget and recommendations for very modest tuition increases, given the fiscal environment, and relative to both public and private college and university peers.

Chair Manning expressed his confidence in President Meehan and his administration to provide the Board with a responsible budget based on robust analysis of revenue assumptions and a closer look at enrollment projections.

President’s Report
President Meehan also welcomed the new student Trustees and Chancellors Mills and Johnson. He stated that he is committed to making himself and staff members available to answer any questions as they transition into their new roles.

President Meehan highlighted the current happenings and accomplishments on the campuses. The Medical School experienced its largest Match Day in history, with 127 students being matched to some of the best teaching hospitals in the nation; the graduating class included 70 advanced practice nurses and 40 PhD scientists; and more than half of the physician graduates have chosen to practice primary care and more than half are also choosing to work for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

UMass Amherst continues to be recognized for its academic achievements and service to its students. UMass Amherst was ranked 117th on the 2017 Best Global Universities list published by U.S. News & World Report, which included a thousand institutions in sixty-five nations; several students received prestigious scholarships, including eight Fulbright U.S. Student Program grant awards; four NSF fellowships; two NSP honorable mentions and three Boren scholarships. The campus’ dining services recently took gold for the seventh year in a row at the American Culinary Federation-sanctioned competition last month; and the Minuteman Marching Band has been invited to the 2018 Rose Bowl Parade in Pasadena, California.

Other highlights of recent activities across the campuses included: a number of UMass Boston students earned a number of prestigious awards and fellowships with three Fulbright scholars, two Boren scholars, two Erasmus scholars and more; the February Bar Exam pass rate placed the UMass Dartmouth Law School at fourth place among the 8 ABA-accredited law schools in Massachusetts and above peers like Northeastern, Suffolk, New England, and Western New England. UMass Law was also ranked third for job placement in public interest fields among 2016 law graduates per data indicated by American Bar Association; two UMass Dartmouth Professors received Fulbright scholarships and Assistant Professor of Bioengineering, Lamya Karim was awarded an NIH grant of $616,000 to study how type-2 diabetes weakens bones, the largest-ever single NIH grant to a UMass Dartmouth principal investigator.

UMass Lowell had several ribbon cuttings last spring thanks to leadership gifts from alumni friends, for the following openings: The Lawrence Lin MakerSpace; The Pulchino Tong Business Center; The Susan and Alan Solomont School of Nursing; The Donna Manning Endowed Chair for Nursing; and The Roy J. Zuckerberg College of Heath Sciences.

The Lowell campus was recently named one of the 2017 Top Accredited Online Colleges for Women in STEM and ranked second in online affordability according to reports released by the SR Education Group. Governor Charlie Baker announced $11.3 million in funding to the campus for the creation of a Fabric Discovery Center and commercialization projects with industry partners, investments that position UMass Lowell as a national leader in advanced fibers and textiles.

President Meehan welcomed three new members of his senior leadership team: Incoming Senior Vice President for Academic and Student Affairs, Katherine Newman; Incoming General Counsel Gerry Leone; and Vice President for Economic Development, Katie Stebbins. He announced that Senior Vice President Marcellette Williams and General Counsel Deirdre Heatwole plan to retire and that Vice President Katie Stebbins recently joined the President’s Office filing an important vacancy since Former Vice President Chmura’s retirement last year.

President Meehan stated that the budget that the Board would review the result of the most thorough and collaborative budget planning process. He thanked the Chancellors and campus administrative and finance teams for working closely with the administration. He ensured the Board that the budget relies on a more robust analysis of enrollment projections than what was available in previous years, which included analysis of online enrollment. President Meehan stated that given current conditions the University’s budget requires continued belt tightening by the campuses and the implementation of cost reductions will continue during the fiscal year. He stated that the decline in state investment to UMass, impressive work has been done to ensure a recommendation to the Board of just 3% tuition increase across the system for in-state undergraduates. The tuition increase is a modest and reasonable increase in the current fiscal environment. He thanked the Administration and Finance team, Chancellors and their teams for their work to put forward the FY18 budget.

Public Speakers:
Anneta Argyres, Vice President of the Professional Staff Union from UMass Boston expressed concerns about the growing deficits on the Boston campus. She stated that the students should not be burdened with paying for the growing deficits with increased tuition bills and should pay for it with reduced educational opportunities. She stated that demanding that UMass Boston alone absorb the costs within a balanced budget will not end the financial crisis or solve the issues the campus is currently facing.

Max Page, from the Massachusetts Society of Professors at UMass Amherst asked the Board to join the faculty in advocating for the fair share amendment. He also asked that the Board stand with the faculty and staff and do their part to make sure that the legislature passes the bill.
