Discussion Items:

Director Hescock described the planning process underway as campuses and as a system with regard to emergency preparedness. He then described the history and objectives of the Enterprise Risk Council. He discussed hazard mitigation planning, continuity planning, enhancing emergency notification systems, information security and international risk management. Director Hescock also provided a Clery Act update and an overview of the ERM (Emergency Risk Management) initiative.

Vice Chair Furman asked where the University was in comparison to the 2012 plan and in comparison to peer systems. There was discussion about the progress made to get all five campuses on the same platform. Director Hescock noted that there were no national or New England statistics at this point.

Chair Thomas asked about an infectious disease plan. She also inquired about the resources available before and after an event, including physical and mental health resources.

Trustee Woolridge asked about vulnerabilities. Director Hescock noted several areas for improvement, including communication. There was discussion about what was entailed in a communications plan.

Trustee Buonomo asked whether or not ERM should be separate from emergency management and business continuity.

Trustee Mullan asked about any barriers to success with regard to host communities. There was discussion about collaboration with the host communities. Chief Fioravanti of UMass Dartmouth described the relationship between the campus and the surrounding communities, including local police chiefs, fire chiefs, and professional organizations.

General Counsel Heatwole reported on how the campuses were working together to address sexual assault prevention and response. She then introduced Ms. Dolores Stafford of D. Stafford and Associates, the firm retained by the University to work with the campuses on sexual assault and misconduct issues for consistency in reporting, audits and training.

Ms. Stafford described her role in helping universities with compliance with regard to the Clery Act and Title IX. Ms. Stafford provided an overview of the ‘Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act’ and national trends in higher education, including new reporting requirements and compliance mandates. She also described increased fines associated with violations in reporting for the Clery Act.

Associate Vice Chancellor Siegel and Associate Dean Ciaraldi from the Lowell campus provided an overview of system-wide efforts in training, awareness, events, and education to address sexual assault prevention and response. Associate Dean Ciaraldi described the various methods for training and awareness for students and new employees. She also reviewed the adjudication process.
